

Chairman Powell,

I am adamantly opposed to the proposed change in regulations that will allow a very few media corporations exclusive control of the public airwaves. Even with the current regulations it is very difficult to hear alternative news programs and alternative editorial opinions. To change the regulations to allow a few huge media corporations to control public debate and access to alternative opinions is not only a disservice to the public but also a real threat to our democracy whose success depends upon debate and access to the public airwaves in order that freedom of speech and freedom of the press can be exercised.

Sincerely,
Steve Chilcoat
